Gift tags

the characters of the map's legends

Merry Christmas
メリークリスマス

To _____

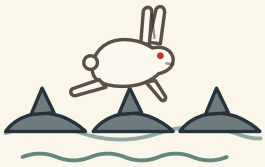

From _____

Merry Christmas
メリークリスマス

To _____

From _____

Merry Christmas
メリークリスマス

To _____

From _____

Merry Christmas
メリークリスマス

To _____

From _____

Merry Christmas
メリークリスマス

To _____

From _____

Merry Christmas
メリークリスマス

To _____

From _____

Merry Christmas
メリークリスマス

To _____

From _____

Merry Christmas
メリークリスマス

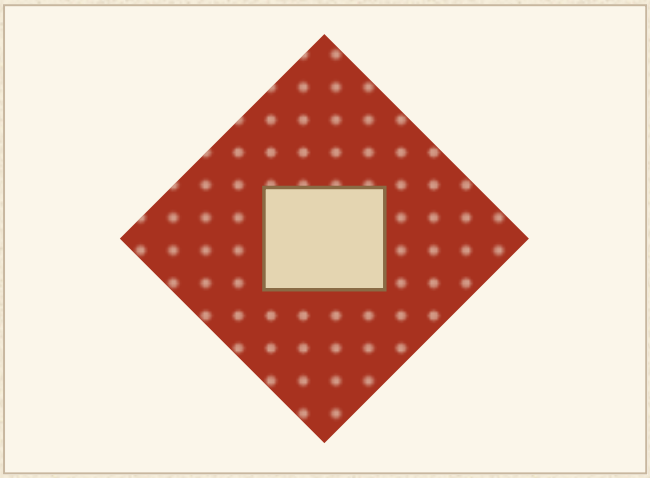

To _____

From _____

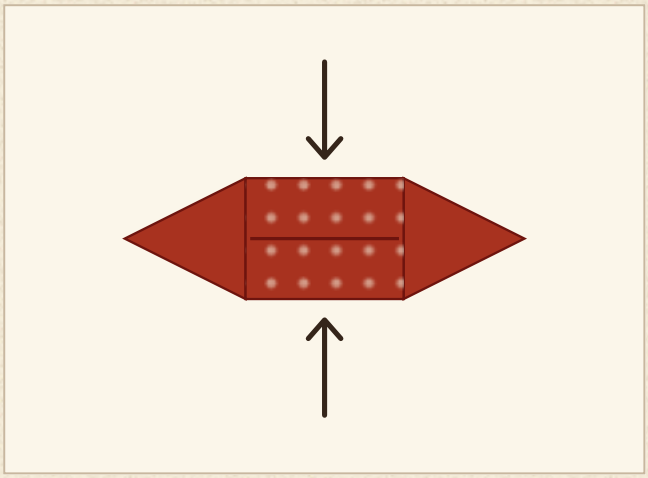

✂ Cut along the dotted lines, then thread a ribbon through the hole.

Wrap a gift the Japanese way: furoshiki

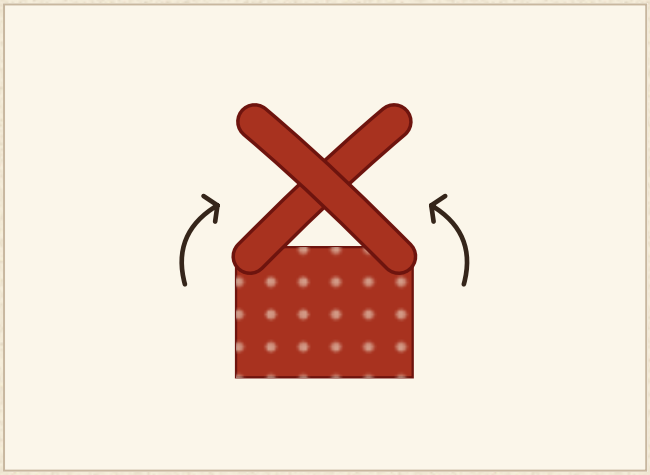

In Japan a gift is often wrapped in a knotted square of cloth, the furoshiki. No paper, no tape, and the cloth is used again. You need a square of cloth about three times as wide as the gift.

1 Lay the cloth as a diamond, the gift in the middle.

2 Fold the bottom corner over the gift, then the top corner over it.

3 Take the two side corners and cross them above the gift.

4 Tie two knots one on the other (a square knot), then arrange the two tips.

> Did you know? Furoshiki means « bath spread »: in the Edo period, people tied their things in it to go to the public baths.